ADDRESS WITNESS

Coatesville Lynching Probe Takes New Turn.

FIVE WOMEN FACE JURORS

Youth Accused of Perjury Following His Testimony Before the Grand Jury Investigating Outrage.

West Chester, Pa., Sept. 7.—Parker Foss, seventeen years old, one of the witnesses summoned before the grand jury investigating the lynching of Zack Walker, in Coatesville, on Aug. 13, was arrested on a warrant after he had given his testimony. The warrant charged him with perjury.

Foss is a testamur before the grand jury. He was arrested by Andrew Wright, a special policeman of the Philadelphia & Reading railway.

He was admitted to bail before Justice of the Peace Paxson. The sum was fixed at $300. The specific charge on the perjury warrant is "swearing falsely before the grand jury."

Richard D. Gibbons, a member of the Coatesville council, was summoned before the jurors, but was examined for a short space of time only. Leon Lipkin, David Wright and W. L. Jones were other witnesses called.

Foss had been called before the grand jury. Oliver Crompton, colored, employed in the same mill as Foss, was called into the jury room, and while he was there Foss was again summoned. The boy was sent outside and recalled no less than three times.

Finally the district attorney came into the corridor and beckoning to Foss asked him his full name. "Parker Foss" was the answer. Galloway then called Wright and despatched him to a magistrate's office for a warrant. Foss sat in the corridor awaiting the officer's return he was visibly worried.

"I don't know whether they have gotten a warrant for me or not," he said. "They told me inside that I had told Crompton how the lynching was carried, and Crompton also said I had. I did tell Crompton about it, but it was simply what somebody else had told me. I got to the scene of the lynching after Walker was dead."

"I didn't tell Crompton that somebody had told me first, however, and the grand jury evidently thought I was lying when I explained the circumstances."

Additional witnesses were called before the grand jury, among them being four women—the superintendent of the Coatesville hospital, a nurse, a cook at the hospital and a telephone operator.

The summoning of Miss Bessie Ely, of Parkersburg, the telephone operator, carries out the belief that the inquiry is drawing closer around Chief of Police Umstead. It is understood that Miss Ely was on duty at the Coatesville exchange upon the night of the lynching, and that she overheard a conversation between somebody at the hospital and Umstead, asking for police protection from the mob, which at that time surrounded the building.

For some time there have been vague rumors that a telephone operator had overheard a conversation of this sort, but it could not be placed as more than a rumor. The arrival of Miss Ely would tend to establish the report as a fact. In no other way could a telephone operator on duty when Walker was burned to death be acquainted with any facts of value to the probe.

Miss Ely, with Miss Townsend, the superintendent of the hospital, and Mrs. McMenamin, a nurse, and Mrs. Sheridan, at that time a cook in the hospital employ, arrived from Coatesville on a trolley car and at once went to the court house, where they awaited the board of inquiry.

Whether Miss Townsend, the first witness, could give the grand jury any names of those in the mob is not known, but her examination consumed fully a half hour.

Following Miss Townsend came Mrs. McMenamin. She is the wife of a man who had charge of the ward in which the self-wounded colored man was placed after his arrest.

The grand march was led by Mrs. Hanan and "Commodore" Peterson, a veteran attaché at the casino. There was dancing, and then supper was served.

Among those who were invited to the ball were chauffeurs, carriage drivers and farm hands of South Kingston.

Mild Fines For Violators of Pure Food Law.

MAKING IT "HOT" FOR THEM

The Department of Agriculture and Courts Impose "Condon Punishment" on Those Who Deal in Dope.

Washington, Sept. 6.—More "condon punishment" has been meted out to the offenders against the pure food and drug act.

Sweeping down on the violators of the law intended to protect the public against the dipping of food products and drugs, the department of agriculture, aided by the courts, has been making it hot for those malefactors who have been violating the federal statutes.

A new lot of notices of judgment in pure food and drug cases has been given out by the department of agriculture. For instance, rheumatism the country over will have with delight the way the government is setting its face against those transgressors who deal in misbranded cures for rheumatism. A case in point comes from the eastern district of Wisconsin, where the United States attorney filed information against a Racine medicine or remedy cure which was labeled as guaranteed to cure rheumatism and other ailments of the muscles and joints. If directions are followed, or the remedy refunded. Analysis by the bureau of chemistry showed the alleged remedy consisted essentially of rhubarb and alcohol and its increased potency did not possess the power attributed to them. The defendant was arraigned, pleaded guilty and a fine of $10 was imposed and immediately paid.

Similar punishment was meted out to a Illinois company that manufactured certain capsules, labeled as a radical and certain cure for rheumatism, a positive cure for rheumatism and the like. It was found by the bureau of chemistry to be misbranded and to lack the therapeutic properties alleged for it. Moreover, it was found to contain chloroform extract. The defendant in this case pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs.

A Chicago concern shipped what was labeled "soda water syrup cola" which was considered by the bureau of chemistry to be both adulterated and misbranded. It was found, among other things, to contain cocaine. The defendant admitted the charges and admitted the presence of the cocaine. He alleged it got in by accident. He was tried before a jury and the jury found he was not guilty.

A district of Columbia firm that had in its possession a large quantity of rice coated with glucose and talc, after seizure of the rice, got the goods back on giving a bond of $100 not to sell any of it contrary to the provisions of the law.

A Wisconsin company for shipping misbranded condensed milk was fined $25.

So-called lithia water was shipped by a party in Waukegan, Wis., which was labeled as being a cure for rheumatism, cold, dropsy and certain other troubles. It was found to contain no appreciable quantity of lithium and not to contain the therapeutic properties alleged for it. A fine of $25 was imposed on a plea of guilty.

A fine of $50 was imposed on a Massachusetts individual for misbranding alleged lemon extract and vanilla extract.

A quantity of turpentine, in the possession of Z. D. Gilman, of Washington, found to be adulterated with benzene was condemned and ordered destroyed.

One of the most important cases which have been before the department of agriculture for a long time relates to 443 cases of frozen eggs, packed in ice, which were found to be adulterated with formalin. The refrigerator company, of Jersey City, examinations by the bureau of chemistry of samples showed it to contain added sugar and 6,000,000 parts per million of formalin. The eggs, being unfit for human consumption, the government charged the substance in whole or part was decomposed.

Federal Judge Cross dismissed the libel and held that the government had not proven its case. The product was returned to the claimants. The government has appealed. The case is important by reason of the large number of cases arising under the pure food law involving frozen egg product, which is a patented substance.

Several other cases are included in the list of notices of judgment. In none of which are severe penalties inflicted.

BERLIN NERVOUS

Rumors of War Over Delay in Morocco Dispute.

FRANCE DEMANDS FREE HAND

Proposals to Germany Are in Treaty Form and There is No Hagling Over Territorial Compensation.

Berlin, Sept. 6.—The nervousness over the protracted Franco-German dispute has increased with the resumption of the German foreign office conversations with the French ambassador, M. Cambon, and the German foreign minister, Herr Von Kiderlen-Waechter.

Wild rumors are being circulated in the German provincial towns. At Stuttgart large sums of money have been drawn from the savings banks owing to rumors that war was impending. The banks are enforcing the rule that notice of the intention of depositors to withdraw funds must be given in advance, and the officials have published communications showing the baselessness of the reports.

Ambassador Reported Shot.

Other rumors circulating on the Alsatian frontier, to the effect that the German ambassador to France, Herr Von Schoen, had been murdered in Paris, are being immediately refuted. It is stated that the ambassador would declare war, were strengthened by the return of a dragon regiment to Colmar, from the capital of Upper Alsace, from the scene of the army maneuvers. An outbreak of dysentery among the troops has been the reason for their return to barracks.

The French proposals to Germany, according to an apparently inspired article printed in the Lokal Anzeiger, was submitted in the form of an elaborate draft of a treaty.

France, the paper says, is not haggling over the question of territorial compensation if she is given a free hand in Morocco.

Germany is willing to grant her full political freedom of action, provided France takes over corresponding political obligations in return. Germany is willing to grant her full political freedom of action, provided France takes over corresponding political obligations in return.
